

Stars of the Week

Each week we would like to highlight the work of a few children who have impressed us with their learning either at home or school. Ordinarily we would present certificates in school for this, but as we can't do that, we will celebrate them here together.

Imogen Wilkes for working SO hard with her phonics. We are all really proud of her. Well done Imogen!

Sam Jones for designing his very own chocolate bar. Sam drew a super strawberry design made of jelly and chocolate. It sounded delicious.

Betsy Garnett for having an excellent attitude towards everything she does and independently writing some super rules for a superhero.

Harry Woolley for creating an amazing chocolate bar, that sounded so yummy. Excellent work Harry!

Mikey Randerson for approaching all his home learning tasks with a positive attitude and producing some AMAZING work. What an absolute star!

Keira Hitchins for some amazing spelling work over the past week and for trying so hard with some tricky maths problems! Well done Keira!

Scarlett Murphy for doing incredible home learning throughout the past 15 weeks - she has worked her socks off, and for her top notch work in school also!

Luke Dunn for doing some incredible home learning last week and also being enthusiastic during the phone calls- he always puts a smile on my face!

Lily Richardson for super effort with her home learning, it's impressive how hard she's trying.

Louie Cook for working VERY hard in school this week, he got on independently and his confidence is really growing.

Thomas Waind for fantastic effort in absolutely everything on Google Classroom, especially his written work where he is showing amazing handwriting and his fantastic acting of Violet Beauregarde!

Charlie Flatt for amazing effort in every piece of work he has completed, especially his written work over the last couple of weeks where he has been trying to make his handwriting very neat!

Eleanor Hall for working hard at home and trying her best with the tasks, even when they are a little tricky.

Simas Jablonskis for working really hard and persevering when things have been tricky.

Joseph O'Donnell for consistently working hard on all the tasks that have been sent home, and showing great progress with his work.

Lyrah Thompson for showing resilience with her maths, and keeping going until she's finished!

Edward Freeman for going the extra mile with his home learning and putting together a presentation on mnemonics for his classmates.

Eloise Niven for trying incredibly hard with her home learning this week and tackling lots of different tasks.

Bobby Redpath for really working hard with his home learning and giving everything a go.

Tess Arundel for a great understanding of informal tone and excellent skills when re-writing a formal piece of writing.

Alice Rosen for an incredible spelling presentation where she presents, in detail, different ways to practice your spellings, the definitions, visual aids and comedy pigeons to help fellow spellers understand.

Fraser Currie for an incredible attitude towards all of his home learning and for sharing the fascinating growth and development of the tadpoles in his pond!

Karthikeya Pulakana for consistently tackling every activity on the timetable and putting his all into every piece of home learning he does.

James Baker for working consistently hard on all of his home learning and for finishing his wonderful Viking website.

Stanley Baker for displaying a really good attitude to his home learning and for keeping up the fab effort.

Charlie McGovern for displaying a great attitude to his home learning and getting up early to start it!

Edward Smith for an excellent attitude to home learning and writing an excellent biography.

Olivia Thomas for having an excellent attitude towards her work both in school and at home.

Emma Dixon for taking part a challenge to raise money for the NHS. She had to run, cycle and walk 50 miles to get a medal but ended up doing a lot more.

Dexter Wright for always being positive during the last few weeks and great baking at home.
